

TPA launches new brand

TPA officially launches its new brand today, in preparation for the UK's largest outdoor events and portable access exhibitions.

The new logo is in line with the re-brand of TPA's parent group, Vp plc, the equipment rental specialist based in Harrogate. All Vp companies have been re-branded to reflect a more unified image to ensure a concise and integrated message is presented to customers no matter which market the individual companies operate within. As you can see from the new versions of the logos, all now have a shared overall appearance and feel.

The new brand has been designed to reiterate the shared values and open culture that Vp has built up over the last fifty years and TPA's customers will see it being rolled out over the next few months with vehicles, clothing and promotional items all changing to reflect the new style.

The change obviously will not affect the excellent service that customers have come to expect; but will merely reflect the benefits that customers receive as a result of TPA being part of Vp – experience across a wide range of sectors within the Group, a strong financial backing and the knowledge that they are dealing with the portable roadways experts.
